

Kevin Husband is the 4th generation to manage his family farm along with his wife, Joanne, son, Jeff and daughter, Katie. Kevin and his wife took over managing Emma Lea Farms in 1978 and ventured into growing new crops for the farm. At present, they have 6 full time employees and 80 seasonal workers. They farm 450 acres and grow green and red cabbage and red beets for BC Fresh. They grow strawberries, raspberries, blueberries, blackberries and pumpkins for the public to pick and for their farm market and stores. They also grow processing peas and beans, as well as silage corn for a rotation of crops. Kevin has been a director of numerous farm organizations in the past such as Delta Farmers Institute, LMHIA, Delta Agricultural Society, BC Blueberry Council, Fraser Valley Strawberry Growers Association and BC Fresh Vegetables. He has experience growing and marketing both regulated and non-regulated crops for wholesale and retail.
